AV-IDT-AE018

(5) Credits

Lectures and Consultations

Academic year of 2017/2018

Prerequisites: -

for PhD Students

TEACHING OBJECTIVE

The course will provide for the PhD students several applications of Financial Management: why do Capital Structures differ across industries, how Capital Structure Theory, Cash Distribution and Working Capital Policies work in practice, and does the Dividend Policy Matter. By the end of this course students should be able to determine how much the value of the companies is in practice. They also could understand some policy implications regarding the valuation process.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Students will have to take an Assignment during the semester. Failed exam can be rewritten as regulated by the Statutes of Examination and Teaching. Class work and attendance are required.
